MEMORANDUM FOR: Executive Director-Comptroller

Colonel White:

You asked why we didn't update the titles in HR []
when we reprinted it to put HR [] on a separate page.

STAT

STAT

HR [] was substantially revised and fully coordinated.
In the process it was reduced from more than two pages to less than one. Since the old HR [] began on the last page of HR [] we had to reprint that page or hold HR [] until HR [] could be revised.

STAT

If we had revised HR [] to make the titles current, we would have had to show a current date of revision; and it would have been necessary to coordinate the proposal. Reissuing HR [] with a current date and new titles would have given the impression of current authenticity, which it doesn't have, and would have conflicted with the processing of a proposed revision of HR [] issues about which are currently being negotiated between the Intelligence Directorate and the Clandestine Service. We do not have a forecast from the Intelligence Directorate about when this revision may be ready for processing.
Rather than hold HR [] indefinitely, we felt that it would be better to publish it and reprint the last page of HR [] as is, continuing to show the September 1963 date of its last revision.

STAT

This mechanical awkwardness could be reduced if we began each regulation on a new page. This would introduce a lot of blank white spaces into regulations and expand their volume probably by as much as 25-35 per cent. The practice has been to try to adapt to the occasional mechanical problem rather than introduce a substantial change in the format of the regulations.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Support

Bob:

STAT

I have just read HR [redacted]
The cover sheet (Hq. Instruction Sheet 527) explains that all we are trying to do here is to print HR [redacted] on a separate page.

STAT

I fail to understand, however, why we didn't make the simple changes in [redacted] that would have made it current. We have not had an "Assistant Director for Operations," an "Assistant Director for Central Reference," or "Assistant Directors for Research and Reports and for Scientific Intelligence" for several years.

STAT

Why didn't we see fit to make these and other similar changes to up-date the regulation prior to reprinting it in large numbers of copies to go all over the Agency as a substitution for what we now have?

MEMORANDUM FOR: Assistant Deputy Director for Support

SUBJECT : Updating of Regulations

REFERENCE : Your Memorandum of 5 December 1969
Same subject (DDS 69-5053) STAT

1. In response to your request for updating of HR []
HR [] I wish to report our progress in disposing of two of these regulations and propose action on the third. STAT

2. HR [] which stipulated procedures for coordinating National Policy Papers, was rendered defunct by the termination of the NPP series and the advent of new NSC procedures. It has therefore been rescinded. STAT

3. An updated draft of HR [] (coordination of inter-agency liaison) is being coordinated within the Directorate of Intelligence and will be ready shortly for Agency-wide coordination. STAT

4. HR [] is a very old but still useful statement of policy on the coordination of finished intelligence publications. What has rendered it obsolete, and will continue to do so, is its overly specific categorization of the mechanics of finished intelligence production. I believe the purposes of this regulation will be properly served if everything after the first sentence in paragraph
c.(1) is deleted, as well as the clause in paragraph a. which reads
"papers prepared on a 'requester only' dissemination basis that do not fall within any of the categories listed in subparagraph
d(1) below". This would make formal the de facto responsibility of the Deputy Director for Intelligence to manage the production of finished intelligence in response to the varied and changing requirements of the consumers of finished intelligence and, in the words of the regulation, enable him to "serve as the point in the Agency where problems relating to finished intelligence publications may be brought for consideration and assistance".

5. I have sent a copy of this memorandum to the Support Services Staff so that the revision proposed in paragraph 4 above may be published as soon as possible.
